CENTENNIAL FOR JENNY LIND; MME, HEMPEL SINGING HER SONGS NO BOTTLE DRINKERS Municipal Court Justice Buried in Green-Wood.

Great Concert in Carnegie Hall in Memory of Swedish Nightingale.

America will pay tribute to Jenny Lind on October 6, the one hundredth anniversary of the birth of the Swedish nightingale, whom P. T. Barnum brought to this country in 1850 on her spectacular concert tour that lasted nearly two years. The centennial is to be commemorated throughout the music loving world. In Sweden in England and in other countries where she sang fitting plans are under way to honor the greatest singer of her time. A fine, noble hearted woman, whose charity was as rare as her art.

Her admirers in New York city will celebrate the event in a unique way. They will give an historical concert, reproducing the first concert Jenny Lind gave in this country, bringing back the stage picture and atmosphere of that memorable night of September 11, The same programme will be given. The proceeds of the concert will be given to the same charitable institu-tions to which Jenny Lind gave the proceeds of the original concert. Mme. Frieda Hempel will appear in

'TICKLE ME' GIRLS

Hence They Don't Know Whether Liquid Souvenir Was Tea or Booze.

Thirty feminine principals and chorus girls who handed out the little bottles of tea or something with which Arthur Hammerstein tickled his customers at the opening performance of his new revue, "Tickle Me," called yesterday afternoon upon Ben A. Matthews, Assistant United States Attorney, under subpoena to appear before the United States Grand Jury and tell what they knew or didn't know about the beverage in the bottles being ten or something eise. None of them went before the Grand Jury, but all of the chorus girls were called into Mr. Matthews's office, where they were questioned by Mr. Matthews and George Winship Taylor, also an Assistant United States Attorney. Mr. Matthews declined to make public what the girls told him, but from interviews which they very kindly granted the young women protested bitterly over what they termed were unjust insinuations, inasmuch as several persons, they claimed, had accused them of being able to recognize liquor by sight and by smell. They also stated, in a body unanimously, that they did not reliah being called from their slumber at the unearthly hour of 11 o'clock in the morning, just because they had been kindhearted enough to

they had been kindhearted enough to hand Mr. Hammerstein's audiences some pretty little bottles.

The statements issued by the chorus girls indicate that they knew no more about the contents of the bottles than do the little lifles of the fields. They told reporters that somebody, probably a stage hand, just shoved the baskets containing the bottles into their hands just before they went out to dance, and naturally their hands closed about them, and then once on the stage it was the most natural thing in the world to give such suspicious looking bottles away. and the people in the audience were the natural ones to give them to "Nobody told us to give the bottles to the audience," they said.
